RATES SECURED

One Fare Plus 25 Cents for Round Trip Will Be Given During State Fair.

Arrangements for the big Kentucky State Fair to be held at Lexington September 18-23 go on from day to day, and each week develops some new feature which will add to the success of the big exhibition. Last week the Board of Control engaged the Heck Carnival Company of Cincinnati. The official title of the company is the Will S. Heck World's Fair Pike Shows, and this title signifies what may be expected. Many of the shows were conducted by Mr. Heck on the Pike during the big St. Louis World's Fair and will be reproduced here just as they were given there. All of them are clean and moral in every particular. They include an excellent animal show, a Japanese theater, theaters with moving pictures, etc., a dog and pony show, a Persian theater and many other similar attractions.

The effort which the management of the fair has made to obtain the cheapest possible railroad rates has been rewarded. Secretary Bain has received a letter from Joseph Richardson, of Atlanta, Ga., secretary of the Southeastern Passenger Association, stating that the railroads will make a rate of one fare plus 25 cents for the round trip from all points in the State to Lexington during fair week. This rate is virtually a one fare rate and is much more reasonable than the railroads are in the habit of giving for similar entertainments. There will beyond doubt be a remarkably large attendance during the week of the fair, and it will come from every section of Kentucky.

The Press and Social Conditions.

The evidence of the badness of social conditions and the inadequacy of laws is the "countless number of individuals" who go wrong. The American press, considered in its aggregate, gives in these days more attention than is given by the press of any other land, to intelligent, careful analysis of bad social conditions and to the effect of evil statutes. The condemnation of these is as distinct and as earnest as of evil-working individuals. Nor is the press wanting in brave and cordial approbation of the conditions and the men that promote righteousness and good works in public and private station.

This is not saying that all writers for the press are wise or sincere or justly discriminating or correct in their opinions. The evidence that they are not is their differences in judgment, recommendation and denunciation. But one thing is apparent—never has there been a more substantial unity of interest and of influence in support of the primary requisites of honesty and fidelity in public life, never a more general agreement in condemnation of wickedness and unfaithfulness, never less slavery to party in the domain of patriotism, never more respect for humanity and justice and the practice of virtue in the citizen whether in public or private station.—Boston Herald.

Sandy Was Right.

When a Scotsman answers a question he settles the matter in dispute once for all. On a certain occasion the question was asked: "Why was Mary Queen of Scots born at Linlithgow?" Sandy Kerr promptly answered: "Because her mother was staying there," and there actually seemed to be nothing more to be said on the subject.

"A Gooder Man."

A presiding elder tells the following true story: For several days he had been sick, and was lying on the couch, resting his aching head, when there was a gentle tap at the door, followed by the entrance of his little daughter of five years, who came forward, saying: "Good morning, sir! I am a visiting deaconess. Are you sick?" "Yes," he replied, "I am quite sick."

Putting her little hand to his aching brow, she exclaimed, "Poor man! I see you have a fever. Shall I heat an iron and put it to your feet?"

Heating her tiny flatiron on a coal stove, she wrapped it in a towel and put it to her papa's feet. Then she continued:

"We deaconesses always read the Bible to sick people. Shall I read to you?"

"Yes."

She began to repeat all the Golden Texts she had learned, and then asked: "Now, shall I pray with you?"

This question surprised the presiding elder, who was not accustomed to be prayed with by his little daughter, but he answered, "Yes; I should like to have you pray with me."

Falling on her knees, she clasped her hands and prayed:

"O Lord, help this poor sick man that he may get better soon, and may be a gooder man than he was before."

The child fully understood the work of a visiting deaconess, who first sees how she can relieve the physical needs of the sick one, and then prays with and for him that it may be well with his spiritual nature.—Bethany Visitor.

For Regulation of Insurance—Legislation by Congress Providing Supervision.

Ralph W. Breckinridge, of Omaha, Neb., Chairman of the Committee on Insurance of the American Bar Association, has completed the report of that committee which is to be presented to the annual convention at Narragansett pier, which will be held August 23 to 25.

The report makes five specific recommendations as follows:

First—Legislation by Congress providing for the supervision of insurance.

Second—The repeal of all valued policy laws.

Third—A uniform fire policy, the term of which shall be specifically defined.

Fourth—The repeal of all retaliatory laws.

Fifth—Stricter incorporation laws in the several States as they affect the creation of insurance companies; and a Federal statute prohibiting the use of the mails to all persons, associations or corporations transacting the business of insurance in disregard of State or Federal regulations.

President Roosevelt is quoted as having said to the committee that he is very much in favor of Federal supervision of insurance.

The committee would require reports to a governmental department showing the amount of money collected, for what purposes used, showing honest holders and the protection of policy.

Bo Liked It.

"There was one thing about your new musical comedy," said the critic, "that I thoroughly enjoyed."

"Ah," replied the smiling author, handing out a cigar. "I'm glad to hear it."

"Yes. The night I was there the prima donna struck, so they had to omit the last act."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Increasing the Life of Telephone Poles.

During the past year the Forest Service, in cooperation with the American Telephone and Telegraph Company and the Postal Telegraph Cable Company, has been making an investigation to find the best methods of seasoning telephone poles and of treating them with preservatives.

Fifty green poles were furnished every month to each of the five experimental stations. Each pole was exposed to the open air, and was weighed every month until it ceased to lose weight. The rate at which weight was lost showed the rate of seasoning in different months.

After one year of seasoning, preservative treatment was applied to the poles, beginning last spring. Several different preservatives and three methods of applying the preservatives were experimented with. Most of the poles at two of the stations—Wilmington and Piegah, N. C.—were treated by applying the preservative with a brush. In a few cases a cap or plate was fitted to the but of the pole and creosote forced in by a pump, but with unsatisfactory results. Both chestnut and juniper poles were treated by these methods.

To test the efficacy of the treatment as a preventive against decay these poles, carefully labeled and numbered for identification, have been set in an experimental section of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, between Savannah and Meldon, Ga. Each treated pole is set between a green and a seasoned pole, so that the absolute and relative values of the different preservatives will be fully tested.

The third method of applying the preservative is that from which the best results are expected. This method was applied to chestnut poles only. At Dover, N. J., in addition to the external applications, a number of seasoned poles were treated in an open tank constructed to permit of 30 foot poles inclined at an angle of 20 degrees. In this tank the poles are boiled in creosote for several hours.

They are then either shifted to a tank of similar construction containing cold creosote, in which they stand for several hours, or are left in the hot oil to cool down gradually. This treatment covers the pole with creosote to a distance of from 8 to 10 feet from the butt. Up to this time a penetration of one inch and an absorption per pole of 35 to 40 pounds of creosote have been obtained. Changes in the method of operation are almost daily increasing the depth of penetration and amount of absorption. This is the first apparatus of this character constructed in the United States for impregnating the butts of telephone and telegraph poles, and the success which is being attained with it indicates the practicability of its widespread adoption in commercial practice.

Since the life of such poles is determined by the decay at the ground line, only the section from the bottom of the pole to about two feet above the ground line needs to be treated. Creosote is expensive, and if the whole pole must be treated the added years of service may not compensate for the outlay. It may be cheaper to use two untreated rather than one treated pole. But if an effective method of treating not more than 8 or 10 feet of the pole can be found, there is every reason to expect that treatment will prove profitable to the users of poles as well as an economy of forest material.

"The eagle that soars in the upper air does not worry itself as to how it is to cross rivers."

Vote for the Secret Ballot.

In response to the protests of the people against the systematic violation of the election laws, the Legislature of Kentucky proposes to abolish the secret ballot altogether and return to the old viva voce system.

It is a confession that the great State of Kentucky cannot enforce its own laws when those laws thwart the decrees of the party machine.

But if the State is not able to protect the secret ballot it will be equally feeble in the face of organized crime against the open ballot.

The secret ballot secures one thing with reasonable certainty: It protects the voter from intimidation.

That is not possible with the open ballot. The secret ballot was adopted in order to give every man the right freely to express his choice at the polls, regardless of the views of his neighbors or the demands of his employers.

It does so protect him, and that protection is not possible with the old system. Again the secret ballot makes difficult if not impossible, the purchase of votes.

Under the old system, under any system with the open ballot, a voter may sell his vote and the buyer has absolute assurance that the vote has been cast in accordance with the agreement before he pays his money.

With the secret ballot the seller cannot give the buyer any evidence that he has delivered the goods. Between buyer and seller there can be no confidence in the good faith.

of either party, so the purchase of votes has been reduced to a minimum.

Other crimes have arisen. Conspiracies have been formed for the corruption of the ballot, and in communities where there is a contempt for law these conspiracies succeed, but they can be as easily successful with the open ballot. It is as easy to pad the lists as to stuff the boxes. It is as easy to buy the clerk who writes the names as it is to buy the clerk who checks the list. In none of these details of crime is the open ballot safer than the secret ballot, whereas in three particulars, the secret ballot gives us the only possible assurance of safety:

First—The secret ballot protects the voter from any form of intimidation.

Second—The secret ballot makes the purchase of votes difficult and dangerous.

Third—The open ballot facilitates the purchase of votes.

The constitutional amendment substituting the open voting for the secret ballot must be voted on in November.—Louisville Post.

Fell Dead.

A man fell dead in Chicago the other day from heart trouble, and thousands die every day in the same way. But the cause of nine out of ten such cases of heart trouble is indigestion. The cure is Dr. Caldwell's (laxative) Syrup Pepsin. The swollen, inflamed, and engorged stomach, presses right up against the heart and prevents it from working; your heart flutters, palpitates, puns and you are short of breath, some lose it forever. Just try for these symptoms, a few doses of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and see how quickly it will cure you. Sold by W. S. Lloyd at 50c and $1.00. Money back if it fails. 3-51.

The United States Geological Survey has just issued a bulletin showing the approximate values of the natural gas produced and sold in the United States. The figures for Kentucky, including a small quantity produced in Tennessee, are $322,404, for Indiana, $4,342,409; for Ohio, $5,315,564; for Pennsylvania (the banner State) $18,139,914.

Trustees and Patrons Should Take Notice—Text Books to be Used.

Since the beginning of the present school year there seems to have arisen some confusion regarding the books to be used in the schools of this county.

In July 1901 the County Board of Examiners adopted for a period of five years a series of text books on the subjects embraced in the common school course. A contract to furnish the list adopted was entered into by the American Book Co., and as a guarantee of their fulfillment of their contracts in the various counties that had adopted their books, they executed a bond before the State Board of Education in the sum of $10,000, which bond was required by law, and it was further provided that, upon failure or refusal of any book company furnishing or offering to furnish such books, to comply with the legal requirements, the text books of such publishers should be removed from the common schools of any and all counties in the State by the County School Board, and that new text books should be adopted.

The Legislature in February 1904 passed an act prescribing a different method of adoption and providing for a uniform series in all the counties, which took effect at once in all the counties, that were free from contracts, and became operative in others as their pre-existing contracts expired. The present law provides that patrons may at any time in one year after the expiration of old contract exchange the old books that they possess for new ones of like subject and grade upon payment of one half the price of the new books.

Some time during the earlier part of this year a suit by Mason County School Board vs. the American Book Company the courts decided that, for failure to comply with the terms imposed by law, the bond of the company forfeited, and as the company refuses to renew the bond it is the duty of the County School Boards of all counties under contract with the American Book Company to remove the books and substitute the State uniform series, and if they fail to do their duty in this matter now and wait until next year, the American Book Company will no doubt refuse to receive the old books in exchange, upon the ground that the first or exchange year of the new adoption has then expired.

Hence it would seem that, in justice to the large number of patrons who are entitled to whatever benefit that may be derived from an exchange of their old books, the County Superintendents should have the School Board remove the old books, and direct the teachers in the county to use the new adoption.

31,000 Illegal Voters in Philadelphia—May Be Many More.

In Philadelphia all city employees within the jurisdiction of Mayor Weaver are now under orders to at once make an examination of the voting lists in their divisions and report all names that are illegally on the lists as qualified voters.

The police in their first canvass reported more than 31,000 names illegally on the lists. This canvass was unsatisfactory to the Mayor and he ordered that another inspection be made. As a result of the first canvass about a score of policemen have been ordered up for trial before the police board for inquiry for alleged failure to report all fraudulent names on the first canvass.

ANNOUNCEMENTS.

We are authorized to announce JAMES L. ROBERTSON as a candidate for Auditor of Montgomery County, subject to the action of the Republican party.

SHOULD THE BRIBE GIVERS ESCAPE PUBLIC CONDEMNATION.

In a recent editorial The Herald expressed an opinion that the tax dodger who bribes is as guilty as the official who yields to the bribe. The bribe-taker is always a weak and unworthy creature who is fairly entitled to all the condemnation and contempt which come his way when he is found out. Trusted with a public place, he proves too weak and selfish and criminal to protect his trust. It is not necessary for our present purpose to say more.

But we think something should be said to arouse public sentiment to the distinctly criminal and aggressively wicked quality of the bribe-giver's offense.

We do not undertake to say that any bribe was either given or taken in the back tax suits which have lately been under public discussion. We prefer to withhold judgment until both sides have been fully heard. But we say now that if any bribes have been given the men who gave the bribes are among the criminals in the transactions.

It is worse than silly to say that a rascal who bribes a public official is an innocent and virtuous business man who has been done out of honest money by a wicked, grafting politician. There is nothing innocent or virtuous about a bribe-giver. He is the thief who is pilfering the public treasury. The bribe is the most he throws to the greedy watchdog to quiet his growls, while the giver thereof commits the theft.

To withhold taxes due is in ethics as much stealing from the public treasury as it is to take out of the treasury taxes already paid in. To corrupt a public official by bribes debauches the official, degrades the briber and wrongs the State. It is a three-fold crime. The man guilty of it is traitorous to free institutions, for grafting and jobbery threaten the permanency of such institutions.

Public thought is aroused to the evil and danger of grafting and we hear much just condemnation of corrupt politicians. But the business interests which do the corrupting work seem able to keep on the concealing cloak of pretended respectability. It is, nevertheless, a fact that politicians become corrupt at the points where political action touches business interests. This is because business men are prone to think it smart and safe, if not legitimate, for them to bribe politicians and public officials whenever their business interests may be benefited at the expense of the public welfare.

To remedy this state of affairs, public opinion must pull the cloak of respectability from the shoulders of the bribe-givers. Bribe-giving is corrupt, criminal, disgraceful and dishonorable. When a bribe-giver is found out he should be put in the stocks of public scorn alongside of the miserable creature whom he has corrupted.

The intimation which has been given by the newspapers that our State administration will protect from criminal prosecution all who may come forward with evidence that they have bribed Auditor's agents in back tax suits may be thought necessary to secure needed evidence; but it would be a greater public service to bring bribe-givers to the bar of justice and thus teach them that to give a bribe is as hateful in the eyes of the law as to receive one.—Lexington Herald, July 29.

THE EYES OF THE GOOD.

Good people see good all around them; the evil minded find evil everywhere. "As we grow purer within the world grows more beautiful without." To the good this world is not going to the bad, they have confidence in all that is humane and strive to conform man in all that he is to what is good, pure and noble.

WHAT'S THE MATTER WITH ROOSEVELT?

The President, oh yes, he was going to call a special session of Congress last spring but his political friends were not stuck on a date so he named September, later October and now Nov. 11, after the election day for fear some one would get hurt. He brave Mr. President.

The office of Justice of the Peace is a very important one, requiring capability, sober, discreet, honest men to administer its duties, men who have been successful in their private business. The popular opinion that any kind of a man can serve as Justice of Peace is erroneous. Every county should have the best.

The Lexington Herald is after the Leader right warmly [and the bone of contention is the negro as a delegate to the National Convention. What will the Republican party do with the negro now since he has begun to talk back and make demands is a very serious question.

Rufus Bryant, Lexington, while drunk, beat his wife, and Judge Riley gave him 200 days for the offense. My! wouldn't a whipping post have been the thing for him?

DINE AT THE FRIAR'S FARM

New Year's Day at the English Home of Rest for Finely Bred Horses.

An equine banquet has proved not the least interesting of the festivities of the season. The scene was Friar's Place Farm at Acton, relates the Pall Mall Gazette, where the home of rest for horses carries on its beneficent work of providing a hospital for convalescents, as well as an asylum for the aged, and the occasion was the annual New Year's day dinner to the inmates. Like other festal menus, this one differed from ordinary fare. Ridiculously simple for the human standpoint, it was a succession of dainties for the equine palate. Each inmate of the 60 or so loose boxes was presented with a New Year's box, filled with an assortment of biscuits, apples, carrots and bits of sugar and bread, and they snatched these bits unsuspiciously to the accompaniment of many caresses and kind words from the guests who were bidden to the feast merely as onlookers. There was no doubting that the horses knew that their environment was en fête. Long before one of them seized a rope in his teeth, and set the dinner bell ringing, two rows of heads and necks were nodding and swaying out of the open upper half of the loose box doors, in intelligent anticipation of the favors to come, keeping their eyes on the tempting tidbits as yet beyond their reach, and dilating their nostrils in sniffing satisfaction. Like patients in a hospital ward, each was identified by a framed card, giving his name, his diet and his treatment, and brief biographies were furnished by the manager of the home, as each horse was visited in turn.

The all-pervading kindness displayed on this day by attendants and visitors alike was but part of the system of thoughtful benevolence that obtains all the year round at Friar's Place Farm. The work of the institution is better appreciated the more widely it is known. Each of the three main objects must enlist the sympathy of all lovers of man's noblest friend among the animal creation. First of all, it enables the poorer classes, on moderate terms to procure rest and good treatment for animals that are suffering, not from age, but from continuous work, sickness, or accidental causes, and are likely to be benefited by a few weeks' rest and care. A little timely relief of this kind enables many filling horses to do further work with comfort for years, thus saving their owners unnecessary outlay in purchasing others. Secondly, it provides animals for poor persons for temporary use while their own are resting in the home, a small amount being charged for such loans, and a strict guarantee of good treatment being exacted. In the third place, the home provides a suitable asylum for "old favorites" that would suffer by being turned out only to grass, but whose owners, instead of destroying or selling them for future labor, desire to place them under good treatment for the rest of their days, paying a remunerative charge for such accommodation. Among the latter class the visitors were introduced to an old chestnut charger whose master, Col. Fludyer, of the Scots guards, had sent him to join the ranks of the other pensioners for life at the Home of Rest for Horses.

wood alone at her window
he tender great gray light, watching the last faint star-world to glow in present time right.
The love her childhood's story
at last closed and laid away, now her sweet childhood's chapter closed out on her bridal day.
I really she feared the future with its mingled shade and cheer, and its promised joys he sweeter as those she must now realize—old the new home ever be dearer and the old familiar nest to loving arms, and faces and its tender memories blest?
Woe it ails her gray-haired father and his earnest daily prayer, who counsel of her mother and her tender, loving care;
say Jack and merry laughter
the happy household hand in whom through all her care-free life he had watched hand in hand.
So she leaves this for a new home
and he never more the same, turning to this, as a quest he could leave a different name—how I have new line of life led with and ones to them scarce known, his tender household goes beneath a home story of her own.
Her loving eyes were filling fast with hot tears she could not hide, and her loving heart was crying,
that she could not be a bride, could not leave the dear old home in which she drew her life-light—her spot could be as dear, to other home as bright.
She turned, there on the table lay the pictured face of him he had loved her from his home nest—
and with eyes still wet and dim, he was watching, as she stood it,
and he gave plans all for them,
"have her then art, beloved,
"ill beneath the house for me!"

AY TO TREAT HAY FEVER

Stomach Dosage. Just Breathe Hyomel—Stops Sneezing and Smarting.

W. S. Lloyd is recommending to customers as a cure for hay fever, Hyomel.

It is claimed for this remedy that it stops the spasmodic paroxysms, the sneezing, the smarting and running of the eyes and nose, and the other acute symptoms of this disease.

Many persons have been cured of hay fever by Hyomel, and the discoverer of the remedy professes to be able to prevent both the occurrence of the annual attack and to stop the disease, even in the most chronic forms. W. S. Lloyd refers to refund the money if Hy-omel does not do all that is claimed for it, is the strongest proof that he can be given as to the confidence he has in Hyomel's power to cure hay fever. The complete outfit costs out $1.00, and extra bottles for 50 cents. (Aug 16 30)

Caught Part of It.

Johnson—Were you at the concert, Jones?
Jones—Yes, part of the time.
Johnson—Did you hear me sing
"The Wolf?"
Jones—"The Wolf?" How did it go?
Johnson (singing)—"Whist! the wolf, in nighty prow, bays the moon with hideous how-wo-w-l."
Jones (expressively)—Oh, yes;
I remember the hideous howl.

everywhere. Their payment is guaranteed by the American Surety Company, of New York, which has a capital of $4, 500,000. We issue a receipt for each order purchased. You do not have to write out an application for them, as you do a Postal Money Order, and you are thus saved delay and inconvenience. The cost

BEWARE OF SUMMER GERMS

Will Cause Sickness Unless The Stomach is Strengthened
With Mi-o-na.

If the stomach is weak so that food does not readily digest in it, the food will become a sour, slimy, fermenting mass in the digestive organs, the ideal condition for germs to cause bowel trouble, diarrhea, and other summer illness.

The well known Mi-o-na will make the whole digestive system so healthy, clean and sweet that food cannot ferment, and any disease germs which may enter the stomach will be destroyed.

Just one small tablet out of a 50 cent box of Mi-o-na before eating, and you will have no headaches, back-ache, poor appetite, distress after eating, heart-burn, furred tongue, sleeplessness, or general debility. It will tone up the digestive system and give perfect health and strength.

Take Mi-o-na now, and W. S.
Lloyd will guarantee to refund the money if it does not cure.
The risk is all his. Aug. 16-30.

The Reason.

"Now why is it," asked his father, "that we celebrate your birthday, Willie?"
"Because I wasn't twins, I guess," replied the penetrating youngster—Puck.

The Fear of Death.

Often haunts the miserable, dyspeptic, bilious patient, who suffers from heart palpitation, chronic cough, melancholy, nervousness, headache, colic, constipation, etc.
No need to fear, for in Dr. Caldwell's (Lexative) Syrup Pepsin, you will find a safe, pleasant and perfect cure for all this pain, distress, and worry. It clears the brain, purifies the blood, and cures all forms of indigestion and bowel trouble. Try it. Sold by W. S.
Lloyd at 50c and $1.00. Money back if it fails. 3-5t.

Stang to Death by Bees.

Near Owensboro, Ky., on August 7 Thomas Hawkins, forty-five, met death in a most horrible manner on the farm of John Nave, stung to death by bumble bees, his death resulting about five minutes after the first bee stung him. A son of Hawkins cutting the yard with the mowing machine ran into the bumble bee nest. The mules became frightened and reared and plunged. Hawkins ran to the team and the bees attacked him. He was stung all over the body and especially on the face and head. He ran a short distance and fell to the ground. He was dead when assistance reached him.

The Farmer.

It does one's heart good to see a merry, round faced farmer. So independent, and yet so free from vanities and pride. So rich, and yet so industrious; so patient and persevering in his calling, and yet so kind and obliging. There are a thousand noble traits about him which light up his character. He is generally hospitable; eat with him and drink with him, and he won't set a mark on you, and sweat it out of you with a double compound interest at another time.
You are welcome. He will do you a kindness without expecting a return by way of compensation; it is not so with everybody. He is generally more honest and sincere—less disposed to deal in a low and underhand cunning, than some other people who might be mentioned. He gives society its best support—he is the edifice of government and the lord of nature.
Look at him in homespun gray and black, gentlemen; laugh if you will, but, believe me, he can laugh back at the pleases.

Peace Envoys Arrive.

The peace envoys arrived at Pittsburgh, Tuesday, Aug. 8, and were received with salutes from the navy yard and welcomed by Rear Admiral Mead. The procession then formed, led by Admiral Mead, and W. Witte, marines drawn up on either side. Thus the envoys marched to the naval stores building, where they were assigned to their respective rooms with their suites.

The program as officially mapped out by Third Assistant Secretary of State Pelce, Rear Admiral Mead, Commandant of the Portsmouth Navy Yard, and Gov. John McLane for the official reception of the peace envoys was carried out without modification or hindrance.

there seems to be no doubt about their getting their divorces!—

A New Treatment

For the pores of the skin which beautifies the complexion.

Many people, especially ladies, are troubled with dry, scaly skin, blackheads, pimples and blotches. Such aliments are generally treated with cold cream, face lotions, witch hazel preparations, etc., which only afford temporary relief, if any. The trouble exists in the pores, removes all the dirt, opens the pores, restores the complexion to its natural beauty. It works on the pores of the skin, makes them healthy and active, thereby giving a smooth, rosy, satin finish to the skin. This new preparation is being used very largely by complexion specialists with the greatest success, and is highly endorsed by all physicians, owing to the fact that it is pure and harmless. Paracamp can be purchased at any first-class drug store, or if your dealer does not keep it, order direct from the factory. The price is within the reach of all. Sold only in 25c, 50c and $1.00 bottles. Manufactured only by The Paracamp Company, Louisville, Ky.
